BUCKINGHAM PALACE

Lieutenant-Colonel J.M. Lowndes, C.D., Commanding Officer, A8th Highlanders of Canada, Moss Park Armoury, Toronto 1, Ontario.

I very much appreciate the kind message of loyal greetings which you have sent to me from all ranks past and present of the 48th Highlanders of Canada, who are celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Regiment this year.

I congratulate the AUth Highlanders of Canada on their distinguished record over threequarters of a century, and I am confident that the high standards of the past will be maintained in the future.

Please convey my greetings and good wishes to all who will be celebrating this landmark in the history of the Regiment in Toronto this August.

2 lijabetti

Colonel-in-Chief.

2nd June, 1966.

WELCOME, HIGHLANDERS!

I have been given the pleasure and privilege by your Reunion Committee of welcoming all 48th Highlanders to this historic three-day reunion commemorating and celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the founding of the Regiment.

Since the formation of the 48th Regiment (Highlanders) in 1891 many tens of thousands of Highlanders have passed through our ranks. Many of those attending the Reunion will have seen action in the Boer War, the Great War and the Second World War where our 49 Battle Honours, of which we are so proud, were won. The Reunion will give you the opportunity to renew old friendships, compare and embellish the stories and to witness your successors in the "Freedom of the City" ceremony on Friday night, August 19, 1966. It will also give you an opportunity of again parading with comrades to stirring strains of the Pipes & Drums and the martial music of the Military Band on Saturday at the Warriors Day Parade and on Sunday at the Remembrance Service when we will pay tribute to our fallen comrades. I sincerely hope that as many as possible will march with us again on these two occasions and those who cannot make it will line the curbs to cheer on their participating comrades.

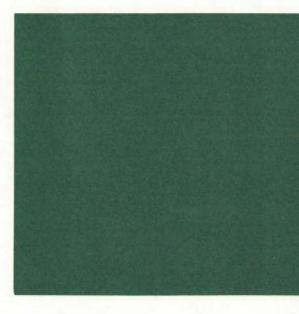

The 48th Highlanders of today are no different than they were 25, 50 or 75 years ago except that they have the traditions you created and honours you won to maintain. They are very cognizant of their duty to maintain this outstanding record and I can assure you that our Regiment is still second to none and continues to have the same Esprit de Corps passed on to us by our forefathers. Our Regiment is in many ways a family unit for many of the fathers and grandfathers, and in at least one case, great-grandfather, of the lads serving today wore the Davidson kilt. The 'Dileas' spirit which you helped create prevails today and will continue in the future. Remember our motto "Dileas Gu Brath" and continue to support your Regiment.

Your Reunion Committee has worked extremely hard and well to make this Reunion successful and I know that all will have a happy and memorable time.

Lieut, Colonel J. M. Lowndes, C.D.

DILEAS GU BRATH

Three-quarters of a century is short span on an eternal pledge. Yet eternity passes only year by year. The 48th Highlanders of Canada, on evidence of their first 75 years, have shown themselves to truly serve "Faithful Forever."

A unit of citizen soldiers in the full sense of the term, the 48th was born of tireless effort on the part of Scottish Canadians who refused to be deterred by less than enthusiastic official reception of their proposal to establish a Highland Regiment in Toronto.

First formal move was made on June 30th, 1891, with the meeting of a standing committee representative of Toronto's Scottish community. Even before that time, a nucleus of what was to become the unit had signed a provisional roll and were turning out regularly for drill. The June meeting was followed by anxious weeks during which a reluctant, cost conscious Department of Militia was persuaded to reverse its initial decision against sanctioning formation of a new regiment. Financed largely by private subscription, the Regiment became an entity at a meeting of the committee of its citizen sponsors on August 11, 1891.

The 48th Battalion Highlanders, as they were then known, were officially gazetted as a unit of Canadian Militia on October 16, 1891. In the decades since they have worn the Davidson tartan, carried their falcon's head crest and marched to Hielan' Laddie with honour and distinction in peace and war.

Choice of the Old Davidson tartan and incorporation of the falcon's head in the Regimental crest were marks of respect for the 48th's first Commanding Officer, John I. Davidson. His leadership and inspiration during the Regiment's critical formative years were invaluable. When he retired, in 1898, he turned over to his successor, A. M.

1934 - The 48th on the march down the Avenue of Flags at the Chicago World's Fair.

1936 — The Regiment, Lient, Colonel J. P. Girvan Commanding, drawn up on parade at the University Avenue Armouries.

1937 — Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, inspects his 48th Highlander Guard of Honour at the Royal Winter Fatr in

Cosby, a competent and widely respected military unit which was not only the pride of its home community on parade but had distinguished itself in military combat and marksmanship competitions throughout the Commonwealth, including the winning of a number of British Forces Championships.

Members of the 48th marched out to the unit's baptism under fire during the second year of Lieut. Colonel Cosby's command as volunteers with the First Canadian Contingent to South Africa. It was the beginning of a proud 48th tradition which has seen the Regiment represented in every First Canadian Contingent since; their valiant contribution won the unit its senior battle honour. South Africa 1899-1900.

W. C. MacDonald's, D. M. Robertson's and William Hendrie's years of command during the early 1900's further tempered the Regimental mould. On the march, on the square; in bivouac and billet; soldiering, singing and sharing; the men of the 48th fashioned for themselves that intangible something called esprit de corps which makes a regiment out of recruits.

Years before 1914 the 48th was ready. When the call came they were among the first into the field moving out at battalion strength as part of the First Canadian Division. The 15th was the first of three fully active 48th Highlander Battalions which won the Regiment its hard bought battle honours of the First World War. It was followed overseas by the 92nd and 134th which also went to the wars at full strength; and in addition another battalion equivalent of 48th Highlanders joined their comrades in arms in a series of separate drafts to the 19th, 35th, 58th, 74th, 95th and 173rd Battalions, C.E.F.

They paid dearly for the right to enscribe Ypres, Festubert, Mont Sorrel, Somme, Vimy, Hill 70, Passchendaele, Amiens, Drocourt-Queant and Canal Du Nord on the Regimental Colours as representative of the unit's 21 Great War Battle Honours.

1941 — Reigate, England, and Trooping the Colour in honour of the Regiment's 50th Anniversary, Left to right Lieut, Colonel W. W. Southam, then Commanding, Brig. E. W. Haldenby to that time with the 9th Brigade) and General Sir Ion Hamilton of the Gerdon Highlanders, who was at that time the 48th's Honorary Colonel.

1943 — Cpl. W. F. Kay is presented with the D.C.M. he earned in Sicily by General Str Oliver

1943 — Near Gambari, Italy, in September, Pte. Sam Carp provides water for a thirsty horse being used to move rations to the front.

J. A. Currie, W. R. Marshall, C. E. Bent, J. W. Forbes and J. P. Girvan commanded the 15th Battalion during the years in which the unit cut its battle teeth. Duncan Donald, who took command of the 48th parent unit when the 15th marched out to war, was the driving force behind recruiting of the 92nd and 134th Battalions. G. T. Chisholm led the 92nd overseas. Lieut. Colonel Donald assumed initial command of the 134th, but illness forced his retirement from service before the unit moved overseas under command of A. A. Miller. Command of the 48th parent unit fell to C. W. Darling, who continued the flow of reinforcements.

The warriors of the 48th came home to a tumultuous Toronto welcome in 1919. Their right to a victory march had been bought at cost of the lives of 61 officers (including a commanding officer, W. R. Marshall) and 1,406 non-commissioned officers and men.

The task had been done, and done well, but the men of the 48th wasted little time resting on their battle laurels. Under peace time command of C. W. Darling, K. R. Marshall, G. H. McLaren, I. M. R. Sinclair, J. P. Girvan, G. M. Alexander and J. H. Chipman they held fast to their tradition of a front line unit ready to answer an immediate call.

The call came in August of 1939. By December of the same year a battalion of the 48th, under command of E. W. Haldenby was on its way overseas, once again a part of the First Canadian Division.

For the next three years, the Davidson tartan was a familiar sight in the training grounds of southern England where the unit was honed to the crack fighting force which added the names of Landing in Sicily, Assoro, Campobasso, Ortona, Liri Valley, Hitler Line, Gothic Line, Lamone Crossing, Rimini Line and Apeldoorn to battle honours displayed on the Regimental Colours. With the exception of Apeldoorn, they reflect the units major contributions to the bitterly fought Italian campaign.

1941 — Reinforcements in training at Camp Borden have completed battle courses and are ready to move overseas.

1944 — Still relentlessly on the move up the Italian mainland the 48th takes the road to Rimini and jurther battle honors.

1944 — The businesshalf of an anti-tank team carries atmour plercing PIAT shells forward into battle.

Lieut. Colonel Haldenby (now Brig. Haldenby, C.B.E., M.C., V.D., C.D. and the Regiment's Honorary Colonel) was followed in wartime command of the 1st Battalion by W. W. Southam, W. B. Hendrie, J. E. Ganong, Ian S. Johnston (now Brig. Johnston, C.B.E., D.S.O., E.D., the Regiment's Honorary Lieut. Colonel), D. A. Mackenzle and J. R. O. Counsell. Lieut. Colonel Mackenzie, killed in action during the unit's final campaign in Holland, was one of the 25 officers and 351 non-commissioned officers and men who paid the Regiment's ultimate price of victory.

The active service battalion was ably supported throughout the war years by the home unit, which recruited a second battalion and maintained a steady flow of reinforcements. Commanding Officers of the home unit during this period were J. B. Girvan, G. M. Malone, J. E. F. Seagram and Hamilton "Laddie" Cassels.

In the years since the Second World War, under command of J. E. Ganong, W. W. G. Darling, M. E. George, G. A. Fraser, H. K. Macintosh, K. C. B. Corbett, D. C. Haldenby, and the Regiment's present Commanding Officer Lieut. Colonel J. M. Lowndes, C.D., the 48th has maintained the traditions which are the hallmarks of one of Canada's oldest and most honoured military units while adjusting with disciplined efficiency to major reorganization of the Canadian militia.

During this time the 48th has maintained its record of being represented in all major Canadian military expeditions since the Regiment was founded. Both Canada's Korean Force and the 27th Infantry Brigade serving NATO's cause have had 48th Highlanders in their ranks.
